

Austin Daze – 8th May 2007
Jackie Bristow – Crazy Love

Some singers have voices that just hit you right away with the first note. Ms. Bristow, with her soft sensuality, is one such artist. She instantly blankets you with her vibe and gracefully leads you through her thoughtful songs.

She was raised in New Zealand, later moving to Australia, where she has already enjoyed some success touring with the likes of Daniel Lanois, while having her music used repeatedly in Australian film and television. She has now relocated to the U.S. Crazy Love is her second record, and quite a mature sounding one considering the stage of career she is in.

Well-textured and intimate, this CD had an emotional effect from the first listen, and has become something I crave hearing now. I have to admit that I'm hooked, and a girl like me never likes to admit that sort of thing.

This is the kind of female singer/songwriter that can win you over quickly, so fans of adult contemporary beware. Ms. Bristow is one talent that could really be headed upward fast.

9 Daisy stars

Daisy's favorite lyric: I've tasted love and the fire from above and nothing else came near